

NATIONAL JUVENILE JUSTICE NETWORK

COMMUNICATIONS INTERN

Spring/Summer 2017

The National Juvenile Justice Network (NJJN) seeks a communications intern for the spring and/or summer of 2017 (spring interns may be offered the opportunity to continue through summer based on performance). We are seeking a graduate-level intern or upperclassman with relevant coursework or work experience to provide communications support.

NJJN leads a national movement of state-based juvenile justice coalitions and organizations to secure state and federal laws, policies and practices that are fair, equitable and developmentally appropriate for all children, youth and families involved in, or at risk of becoming involved in, the justice system. The intern will support NJJN's communications activities, including: building a youth justice photo library, drafting social media posts, creating promotional material (written, audio, and video), maintaining our digital library, documenting citations of NJJN's work, and other duties as they arise.

The intern must have excellent research and writing skills, communications experience, the ability to work independently, and a demonstrated commitment to social justice. Experience working on issues related to social justice and/or experience in the field of youth justice is strongly preferred. The intern must be able to work in a collaborative team environment and think creatively about all assignments. Interns can be based in Washington, D.C. or Portland, Oregon. Portland-based applicants should be equipped to work remotely. Interested candidates should submit a cover letter, resume, and writing sample to Benjamin Chambers, chambers@njjn.org. Start and end dates flexible. Interns expected to commit at least 15 hrs/wk. Applications accepted until position is filled. More information about NJJN can be found at www.njjn.org.
